

THE DIACRITIC FONTS JAGHBUB

Below is a list of the diacritic characters contained in the Jaghbub font package. All fonts contain the same set of diacritic characters, based on and similar to the standard fonts Times (the Jaghbub font), Helvetica (Bairut), Palatino (Koufra), as well as screen fonts for Geneva, New York, Courier and Monaco. In addition to the diacritics listed, all fonts also include the regular alphabet and normal European diacritics (é, à, ö etc.).

To make typing easier, separate 'keyboard layouts' have been developed for US, UK, French, German and Danish users. These are separate files which you drop into your System and which you can then choose from the Mac's Keyboards menu. They are not needed to display or print with the fonts, but only make it simpler to type the diacritics (by e.g. pressing "option" together with "s" to get "š"). In order to see how to type in your national system, look in the "Jaghbub keys table" file in the package for a full list.

What you use the characters for is your own choice. But below are listed, for information only, in Arabic script some the characters that normally correspond to the various diacritics (some use "j" for ج, some use "ğ", that is of course the user's choice)
